

Excavations at 25 Cannon Street, City of London: From the Middle Bronze Age to the Great Fire

By Nicholas K. Elsdon

Museum of London Archaeology. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Excavations at 25 Cannon Street, City of London: From the Middle Bronze Age to the Great Fire, Nicholas K. Elsdon, This report provides a chronological account of excavation findings at 25 Cannon Street, supported by many illustrations and specialist contributions. The dig revealed a long sequence of occupation, and adds to findings made on the site in 1954. Redeposited pottery provided rare evidence for Middle Bronze Age activity in the area of the City of London. Early Roman quarrying and timber buildings were followed by increased development from c AD 70. By the late 2nd century the area included masonry buildings, some possessing tessellated floors. Building alignments indicate the route of a Roman road immediately to the north of the site, beneath Watling Street. One Roman building was occupied until the late 4th century, its ruins covered by "dark earth". Four cellared buildings had been constructed on the site by the mid-11th century, and pre-dated Friday Street and the Church of St Werburga, later St John the Evangelist. The church was founded between 1098 and 1108, and was rebuilt with a wider chancel in the 13th or 14th century. Medieval and...

READ ONLINE
[9.35 MB]

Reviews

A top quality publication along with the typeface utilized was intriguing to read through. It is amongst the most awesome pdf i have got read through. Its been developed in an remarkably straightforward way and it is only right after i finished reading this publication in which actually altered me, modify the way i believe.

-- Don Pacocha

Completely essential study publication. This is for anyone who statte that there was not a well worth reading through. I am very easily could get a satisfaction of reading through a written publication.

-- Hallie Stanton