In 1900, Mama Cats gave birth to a daughter and named her Toledo. Now Toledo is 21 and Mama Cats has done all she can to raise her to be a good woman and a midwife. On a clear night in March 1921, Mama Cats decides it s time to tell Toledo the truth about her birth and reveal her plan to join Toledo s father. Her mama s confession and the events that follow leave Toledo with more questions than answers; more grief than joy. But just as she is worrying about how to tell her long-time soul mate, Hanover Fist, about what happened, a knock at the door reveals a man with glowing red eyes. Meanwhile, at the New Orleans police precinct, Hanover Fist stops by to see Duncan O Malley after a long hot day walking the beat. O Malley is hard at work trying to solve the case of a negro child found comatose from severe burns. The only clue they have to go...
